Hannah Montana Complete Season 1-4 [Dual-Audio] [English-Swedish] DVDRip X264 Mp4 - Amaanu01. Hannah Montana Complete Season 1-4 [Dual-Audio] [English-Swedish] DVDRip X264 Mp4 - Amaanu01Q: Converting an integer to a char I want to turn an integer input into a character as in the following: Question1: The user enters an integer. The program then outputs the number, if that number is 3 then it displays an 'h' and an 'h' if the number is 6 then display a 'd' and so on. Here's my code so far: #include <int main() { int input; char out; printf("Enter an integer: "); scanf("%d", &input); if (input = 3) out = 'h'; else if (input = 6) out = 'd'; else if (input = 9) out = 'c'; else if (input = 12) out = 'b'; else if (input = 15) out = 'a'; else out = '\0'; printf("You entered: %c", out); return 0; } The problem is that I don't know how to make the loop. It isn't working because the variable input is not being defined. I want it so that the user enters an integer for example: 12 and then as if they had chosen the 'd' option, it displays the number 12 in its place so if it was 'd' it would look like this: You entered: 12 A: The problem is that you are using wrong operator. It should be == for assignment. Change it to ==. int input; char out; printf("Enter an integer: "); scanf("%d", &input); if (input == 3) out = 'h'; else if (input == 6) out = 'd'; else if (input == 9) out = 'c'; else if (input == 12) out = 'b'; else if (input == 15) out = 'a'; else if (input == 12) out = '\0'; printf("You entered: %c", out); return 0; }
