Meet the Two-Player Version of the Human Resources Secretary Why not get your secretary onto the computer? Play it together using the keyboard and mouse, and then go home and make those dirty phone calls you've been wanting to make. Our 1920's secretary will eagerly put your favorite phrases and requests into action to help you find your way in this Windows-based game. In this version, the game controls are limited to the keyboard and mouse, and the game has been fully voice-acted. Enjoy the company of your secretary as you fulfill your fantasy life as a busy businessman in this fun, text-based life-simulation game. You will enjoy the company of a lovable, helpful, and well-educated secretary whose expressions reflect her job. Have her express your emotions at work or at play through the microphone on the computer, and take care of your entire life in the company of your human resources secretary. In this version of the game, there are a variety of different scenarios available to play, and you can choose how many days you want to play through, and whether or not you want to take a break from work between each day. Your secretary will help you to solve any problems that come up, and it is your responsibility to pay your secretary to help you out as she grows old and grows wiser. Enjoy! You can play with or without options and adjustments to the game.
