Fluffy is a battle and puzzle platformer from Pixel Quest Entertainment. It has a different soundtrack and great visuals. The game is set in a world where wildlife and human inhabitants lived together peacefully until a dispute over a food plot arose, and the Kekusan army started annihilating all the Evos and other wildlife. This is not a game based on special effects or action. It's mostly a game of logic, puzzle solving and patience. The player controls a blue ball with the ability to navigate the levels and the environment. There is no offensive weaponry, you cannot attack the environment or the player controls the game, merely the blue ball. The player can collect a variety of things such as special coins, arrows, potions, and clothing, as well as powerups in the form of changing the game into different gameplay modes.Q: TensorFlow Keras : Create an object-oriented loss function In TensorFlow's Keras, we can create the same behavior as in PyTorch by adding something like a weights : loss = tf.losses.custom_loss(labels, prediction) In PyTorch we can create a losses.py file, and we can have something like this : class CustomLoss(Loss): pass def create_custom_loss(labels, prediction): return CustomLoss(labels, prediction) Now, how to create an object-oriented loss in TensorFlow? This function already exists in TensorFlow: A: You can instantiate classes as you would in the pytorch (in a loss.py file) with TensorFlow's tf.keras.losses.LOSS_CLASSES. tf.keras.losses.LOSS_CLASSES are a list of loss classes, ie. the type of loss you want to create. You can check how it is used in tensorflow/python/keras/backend.py module of tensorflow. Chapter 1 Date: 28/7/2017 Time: 6:06am Location: Gamindustri Location: Halcyon Location: Gamindustri Tatsumi was a large object of envy as he slept in his bed, but he could never complain as he was the best billionaire in the world. When he awoke, he turned his bedroom light off to set him in a good mood, Tatsumi's home smelled of old marshmallows and nice cheeses, his favorite combinations of snacks, the smell was rich and never changed the way it usually did with hours. Tatsumi opened his curtains, revealing a great view of the landscape in front of him, the scenery was calming and stressed him out less then usual, the sound of cars in the distance allowing him to breathe a little. But on the bottom of the wall, which was covered by curtains, there was a camera, or at least a shiny object. Tatsumi reached for it, his fingers touching it for such a small time, the man felt his cold body get heated up instantaneously. Slowly, Tatsumi turned the object over to unveil the face that gazed back at him. She had dark brown hair, a light tan skin tone, and large ruby red eyes which gave her unique characteristics as the only human she knew, was even rarer than her. The name given to her was "Rio". Rio Maria Hinoi Ruby, according to her eyes. She was classified by his security system as a jackass. "I'm going to kill you", was Tatsumi's first thought, and the second thought he had was "Why hasn't a scientist figured out how to make a giraffe? I feel like they could fix this." Tatsumi sat up and petted her hair, the woman smiled and confirmed his ugly suspicion. "She has a very gentle face, probably could make great babies if given the right conditions," Tatsumi told himself. Rio was such a loving girl, she always appeared to be angry about something, but she never showed it in any way, even when she was the butt of jokes. Her birth mother, Maria Hinoi, lied to protect her from the earth nation government, not wanting them to pay special attention to what she was doing. She was stopped by officials during a political rally, who she thought were a boring government propaganda

Dark World is a top-down arena shooter. You're thrown into a dark dungeon and will fight your way through waves of enemies using and ultimate arsenal of weapons and abilities. Discover deadly traps and special weapons as you play, and find your way out alive. Great difficulty and responsive. I've played this game multiple times now, and keep going back. 5/5 Unique Experience – I've played this game on my android phone. I'm a PC gamer and don't play on a phone. The game play is excellent. I'll give it a 6.5 Controls – Touch screen is intuitive and responsive. Moves and shoots great. The only problem is that my thumb flies off the touch screen when shooting. When it happens, it's easy to accidentally use the left and right buttons to fire. Controls are entirely click/touch screen. Drink, Drugs, or a Backpack? – I've always enjoyed playing RPG's, so I knew Dark World was going to be great. The story, graphics, and game play was awesome! The only problem was that this game would drain my battery. I found this out pretty quickly. I had to stop playing around 6 hours in. On the other hand, that was all I played. Better Left Alone – As mentioned before, I spent the first 5 hours of this game alone in a dark dungeon. There's no way to explore until you've completed the game. That was a shame because there is an entire dungeon available to explore. The dungeons are generally lush and beautiful, but they're dead after the first 5 hours. Worth the Price – It's an old school genre.

Why hasn't it been made more often? This game is fun and addicting. I wish I had gotten this when I first bought the phone and played it on my tablet. I'd have kept playing instead of just stopping to charge the tablet. Dark World is a great game!The EU has set in motion a new battle over who gets to speak on behalf of the continent. EU leaders agreed to launch legal action against Twitter on Tuesday for blocking users' posts after the company promised to remove some content. The move comes amid an ongoing row between the European Union and the US government over the publication of the US National Security Agency's (NSA) program to allegedly collect the communications of EU citizens. The allegations have angered EU leaders and organizations, some of whom have accused the US of encroaching on
