As far as I am concerned, JDBC driver should be used. But I am not sure, if it is the best option. I am using following configuration Database Name:mydb Host Name:172.25.25.30 Database URL:jdbc:cassandra://172.25.25.30:9160/mydb?create_if_not_exists=true User:customer-1 Password:abcd And following JDBC Driver: jdbc:cassandra://172.25.25.30:9160/mydb?create_if_not_exists=true Jmeter version: 2.18.1 I am not using any DBA who owns a cluster of cassandra nodes. I am doing all of it manually. I am not using any special application that can be integrated using DSE. Can anyone please help me on this? The reason why I am asking this question is, I want to know whether my JDBC connection setup is right or not. If it is not what are my options? A: The JDBC driver in Jmeter is the same as the driver used in standalone applications. It is up to you to connect to a cluster and validate that access to the cluster is secure using any of the existing methods. My advise is to use cqlsh from the JDBC driver and run the select statements to confirm that your connection is established to the cluster. If you have secure access, you can confirm that the keyspace you want to connect to has been created. d0c515b9f4

Because my home was pummeled, my home was broken into, and my home and my parents had been terrorized, I decided I would make the home I've worked so hard for mine. I decided I would take a year out of my life to work on the home I have worked so hard on and make it mine. Since the moment I broke the news to my family, they've shown nothing but support and love. My Mom, to this day, refuses to go to bed without starting her prayers for me. My Father had bought himself a new house, and had told me I could stay with him until I was able to move into my own place. I stayed for 3.5 months. I had no place to live. I had no place to work. I had no money. But all along, my family was there for me. One night, I asked my Mom, "why would God choose me to be homeless?" She prayed for me, and said, "Christ chose you." I was instantly brought to tears. It all felt so surreal. Then one night, I was in my room listening to music. When you're trying to just zone out, one of the songs that I listened to that night I'd had a hard day and just felt really tired. I put the song on repeat and went to bed. It was then I heard it. God. Was trying to talk to me. "I know you're tired, tired of everything, but I'm here." It felt so surreal and so odd that I was talking to God. I assumed it was a dream. Then I heard Him again. "You've been asking about why you were homeless. Why did you live in a homeless shelter for three months?" I started to cry. "Because I was broken." I had been broken by a car, my parents, the accident. "I've been trying to fix myself. For a year I've been working on myself, put so much time and work into making myself a better person." I didn't understand why, that day, God decided to offer me a chance. I didn't know if I really was prepared to accept it or not. But He kept popping up. "I've been trying to fix your brokenness. I've been trying to fix you for a long time now. It's not working. But I want you to know it's not your fault. I've been watching you. This is part of a lesson. It's a lesson I have to teach you
