Sodium hyaluronate (Na-HA) is an effective barrier membrane adjunct in the treatment of alveolar clefts. It is thought to enhance closure of the cleft by promoting re-epithelialization. To better understand the mechanism of action of this material, the effect of Na-HA on the growth of cultured mouse bone marrow cells was studied. Bone marrow cells were isolated from the femur and tibia of mice and grown in a monolayer. Cells were either exposed to Na-HA or to vehicle control for 7 days and cell number determined at the end of the experiment. Exposure to Na-HA resulted in a significant increase in the number of live cells, compared to controls. It is therefore postulated that Na-HA promotes proliferation of the cells in the cleft, and is thus able to enhance alveolar repair.The latest drill sergeant to bite the bullet is Bill McKeever, an ex-Marine turned creator and director of the reality series, Drill Sergeants: A Year in the Trenches, an hour-long show on the Military Channel that documents the grueling training and challenges faced by recruits in boot camp. McKeever's character, Sergeant Micah Price, is the focus of two new Navy recruiting ads. The first one, released last week, showcases Price's no-nonsense approach to recruits. But the other, which was just released this week, is a tone-deaf example of the military's message. In this ad, which was created by the Navy's marketing team, Sergeant Price offers the benefit of free tuition—for military families, of course. However, with a smirk, Price adds that he'll "only cover about 50% of tuition if you make it through hell." As he leaves, Price's boot-camp instructor warns: "Don't let '
