Q: How to get the ID of a clicked li element in jQuery? I would like to get the id of a clicked li. My code: $(".list li").on("click", function() { id_li = $(this).attr("id"); alert(id_li); }); How can I get the correct id? A: You can use this.id instead of $(this).attr("id") like $(".list li").on("click", function() { id_li = this.id; alert(id_li); });

1 2 3 Ukraine was the latest victim of sanctions imposed by the US,

EU and other countries. The US has imposed sanctions on Ukraine, restricting its ability to trade with countries including Russia and Iran, and curbing its ability to purchase gas and oil on the international market. The EU and US imposed sanctions on Russia in 2014 after the annexation of Crimea. On December 28, 2018, the European Union extended sanctions on Russia by another six months. On February 22, 2019, the US announced sanctions on individuals and companies in Russia, Iran, North Korea, and Syria. In recent months, the economy of Ukraine has experienced negative fluctuations as a result of the gradual normalisation of political and economic relations between Russia and the West, including the EU. In the second half of 2017, anti-government rallies took place in Kiev, Kyiv, Kharkiv, and Dnipropetrovsk; some of them developed into violence with the use of firearms and explosive devices. In November 2018, President Poroshenko announced a state of emergency in the country; the measure was in line with the Political Declaration adopted by the Ukrainian government in 2015.
