The effects of fenofibrate on isoproterenol-induced myocardial lipid peroxidation in perfused rat hearts were studied. Isoproterenol (10 microM) increased cardiac lipid peroxidation measured as malondialdehyde formation. Fenofibrate (0.3-10 microM) was used to test its protective effects on this lipid peroxidation. Fenofibrate increased the myocardial lipid peroxidation with a 50% effective dose of 4.8 microM. This result suggests that lipid peroxidation in isoproterenol-induced myocardial injury may be limited by lipid-lowering agents.A dozen Republicans to face off against two Democrats in a Nov. 5 election for mayor and council seats in San Francisco's Castro District are embracing a three-word slogan for their races: "Putting Castro back on track." But the candidates for mayor and on the council have used the slogan to express a widely held view that rent control is not the answer to solving the city's housing shortage and affordability crisis, which has eroded the Castro District's reputation as a cultural and culinary epicenter. Theresa A. Ordóñez, the district's only incumbent councilwoman, is one of the 12 candidates vying to replace outgoing Mayor London Breed, who decided not to seek reelection. Candidates in all 10 council districts face off in the general election. Ordóñez, who represents the Castro District, is the only incumbent. Although the 20-year Castro was once derided by politicians and businesses as a blighted neighborhood because of its large homeless population and drug sales, it has been transformed in recent years into a vibrant, exciting and tolerant community. Now the city wants to reverse that transformation by making it harder for landlords to raise rents and evict tenants. The Castro is one of the few major cities in the country that have passed a policy to limit what landlords can charge for rent and evict tenants from their apartments if they want to. Some candidates are pushing a ballot measure that could undo the policy. Two of the candidates seeking the mayor's job endorsed the ballot initiative, which could go before voters in November. c6a93da74d
